Processing of your data

teamdress has no influence over the data processed by Xing, the type of processing, the use or transfer of this data to third parties and has no way of exercising any control over this. If you access our Xing account and/or your own your personal data will be collected, transferred, stored, and used by Xing. The data will be transferred, such as to the USA, and stored and used there regardless of your place of residence.

If a user is logged into their Xing account at the same time when visiting the teamdress Xing account, profile master data may be included in the statistical analysis.

Using Xing is subject to Xing's Terms & Conditions (As at: 06 January 2020):

<https://xing.com/terms>. These apply to using the service.

Xing processes the data you voluntarily provide such as name and username, email address, telephone number, contacts etc., in order to send you marketing or other content. Xing uses analysis tools such as Adobe Digital Analytics, Bing, Facebook Pixel, Facebook Custom Audience, Google Analytics and other trackers to evaluate your data. teamdress has no influence over the use of such tools, is not informed of their use, has not commissioned or approved their use and does not support their use in any other way. teamdress is not provided with the personal data obtained by Xing.

Xing also receives information from you if you view content, even if you do not have/have not created a Xing account. This log data consists of your IP address, browser type, operating system, information about the previously and subsequently visited website, the pages accessed by you within a website, your location, mobile phone operator if applicable, the end device you are using (including device ID and application ID), the search terms you used and cookie information.
